THRONGS WITNESS AMERICAN LEGION STREET PARADE

Perhaps the largest street parade ever seen in this locality was staged last Friday evening on the occasion of the presentation of the Post colors to Daly City Post No. 410 of the American Legion. Various committees working with "Gene" Shreve as chairman, spent many days in preparation for this event, which necessitated visits to various organizations on the Peninsula, as well as other points in the Bay region, to stimulate interest, with the result that some fifty-eight organizations were represented in the pageant.

The parade started promptly at 8 P. M. from the San Francisco county line, and under the able guidance of G. I. Woodside, as marshal, was remarkably free from confusion on its march via Mission street to Colma, thence returning to the Jefferson Union high school, where the presentation ceremonies were conducted. The streets were appropriately decorated and the colorful uniforms, the many musical units and the glare of red and green flares all served to create a holiday atmosphere for the spectators who lined the highway from one end of the city to the other.

The City Council, the Merchants' Association, Veteran Firemen, Volunteer Fire Department, Eagles Drum Corps, El Carmelo Parlor, Native Sons, Knights of Columbus and various other local bodies are due a great big vote of thanks for the splendid spirit displayed in helping to make the affair the wonderful success it was.

The decorations along the line of march were donated by the Merchants' Association and added materially to the festive occasion. The Veteran Firemen fairly outdid themselves in the pains they took to add color, while the members of the Fire Department, resplendent in new uniforms and the last word in apparatus, certainly made a creditable showing and brought home the realization that Daly City is not lacking in adequate fire protection and an able bodied personnel. The Daly City police department showed unusual efficiency in being prepared for any emergency that might arise due to traffic congestion, etc., and were also instrumental in getting a large representation from the state department.

The coming man power of the community was very much in evidence, typifying that they are here to "carry on," being that large number of Cubs and Boy Scouts who escorted the Post.

All in all, not a thing was lacking, and the termination of the parade found the auditorium unable to hold the crowd.

Invocation was offered by Chaplain Dineen, of Burlingame Post. The presentation address was delivered by Mayor H. H. Smith, who displayed a remarkable knowledge of the aims of the Legion, and spurred the members on to further effort.

T. Louis Chess, acting as master of ceremonies, handled the program in the most efficient manner, and also accepted the colors for the Post.

The Auxiliary Unit was also presented their colors, the acceptance speech being made by Mrs. Mary Anne Holt.

Area President Captain George F. Rixey conducted the dedication in a manner all his own and his rendition held every one spellbound.

Chief of Police Doyle had a friendly word for the boys, and Minerva Hartman spoke of her observations during the many years of her patriotic service.

Principal James Ferguson of Jefferson Union high school dispelled the idea that the days of the Big War have passed into oblivion in the sympathetic remarks he made, which were well received. Followed Councilmen Bodien, Sundermann, Twesten and Dalton with a word of appreciation and approbation, as well as laudatory remarks from W. H. Clay, representing the Merchants' Association. Frank C. Tracey and Lieutenant-Colonel Lurie also addressed the gathering.

Terminating the ceremonies the Municipal Carmen's band rendered a final selection and the guests dispersed, some of them, however, going to Post headquarters, where refreshments were to be had, and dancing was enjoyed until the small hours.

Wins Honors at Golf

Miss Jean Flint, of Lincoln Park, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flint, of Templeton avenue, is the champion woman golfer of San Francisco. She won the laurels last Friday, when she conquered Mrs. Carl Borgen, of Harding Park, one up, on the Harding course. Both are newcomers in the top flight of women's golf locally, and both swept aside favorites to get to the finals.

LOCAL RESIDENT ACCIDENT VICTIM

Following a week's search for Harry J. Hutchings, of Daly City, superintendent of the W. R. Ames Co., 150 Hooper street, San Francisco, two men, hunting watercress, stumbled upon his body in Purissima Creek, south of Half Moon Bay, last Wednesday.

Hutchings had apparently plunged to the creek bed from a bank fifty feet above. An autopsy, performed by Dr. F. A. Steele, revealed that he died from a broken neck. The body was found a short distance from his camp in Purissima canyon, where he had gone for a two weeks' vacation. He disappeared on August 12.

Authorities are convinced that death was accidental, although admitting the possibility of foul play. He had no known enemies, and there was no reason for suicide. W. R. Ames, head of the company where Mr. Hutchings was employed, declared his affairs with the company were in excellent condition.

Mr. Hutchings, who was 47 years old, lived at 138 Vista avenue, Daly City. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn his untimely passing.

BRIDE ELECT ENTERTAINED BY FRIENDS AT SHOWER

Last Friday evening Miss Drusilla Felsch, of Risel street, entertained at a surprise shower in honor of Miss Rose Mills, whose engagement to Mr. Lawrence Jacobsen was recently announced. The home was artistically decorated in pink and blue. In one corner of the room was a rose petal decorated umbrella, held open over a pink and green rain barrel. Each guest deposited her gift in the barrel. Much merriment was caused when the shower of gifts was opened.

At an artistically decorated table the following guests were seated and enjoy the tempting refreshments served: The Misses Martha Mills, Agnes Felsch, Mary Noonan, Mary Utterback, Alice Carmack, Evelyn Harvey, Rose Collins, Claire Hensen, Sylvia Evans, Gladys Kirk, Edna Holmes, Ann Coolish, Dorothy Fiel, Adaline McNaulty, Guirina Bradley, Drusilal Felsch and June Felsh; the Messrs. Phil Harvey, John Schmall, Laurence Jacobsen, George Felsch, and George Felsch, Jr.

BELOVED DALY CITY WOMAN PASSES AWAY SUDDENLY

Last Monday evening at 7:30 Mrs. Emma D. Jones, of Parkview avenue, passed away in the presence of her husband and a friend, in her home, having been suddenly stricken with a heart attack.

Mrs. Jones had resided in Daly City for a good many years and was well known in lodge circles and was beloved by all who knew her. She was a native of Inidana, aged 61 years. Besides her husband, William O. Jones, she leaves a brother, William G. Molar, of Los Angeles, and a host of devoted friends to mourn her untimely passing. Mrs. Jones was a member of Crocker Chapter No. 382, O. E. S., and Tribe of Ben Hur. The funeral was conducted from the parlors of Suhr & Weiboldt, Valencia street, last Thursday.

ENTERTAIN IN HONOR OF BRIDE AND GROOM

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Verbrugge, of Whittier street, entertained a group of friends last Wednesday evening in honor of their son Ernest Koch and his bride, the former Miss Betty Faheys, of Risel street. The happy couple have just recently returned from their honeymoon, spent at Monte Rio. A large bridal cake with a bride and groom as its only decoration was the table centerpiece. The guests present included Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Foulkes and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fay and son Joseph and daughter Helen, Mr. and Mrs. G. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. William Bolger, Mrs. M. McCarthy, Joseph Bolger, William and Cecelia Verbrugge, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Koch.

WOMAN KILLED BY PICNIC PARTY BUS

A heavy bus, crowded with passengers, crashed into a small coupe on the state highway at Burlingame last Sunday, fatally injuring one woman and critically injuring another. The fatally injured woman was Mrs. W. Muller, of Hayward. Miss Bessie Vandermack, 53, of Moore Park, Ventura, suffered spinal injuries, internal injuries and serious cuts. Both were taken to Mills Memorial hospital, where Mrs. Muller died an hour after the accident.

Occupants of the bus were shaken up, but none were injured. The bus had been chartered from the Grey Line, Inc., at San Francisco to carry a picnic party to Emerald Lake. R. J. Vocke, of San Francisco, was the driver of the bus. He was questioned by the police, but no charge was lodged against him.

The accident occurred at the intersection of the State highway and Broadway, Burlingame. The coupe, driven by Miss Vandemack, was crossing the highway when the bus struck it frm the rear.

JEFFERSON P. T. A. MEMBERS WELCOME BRIDE AND GROOM

The Jefferson High P. T. A. members held their first meeting of the year in the Senior room on Tuesday evening, August 18, with Mrs. McIsaac, the new president, presiding, and Mr. Clive Saiz acting as secretary. A good attendance was greatly appreciated by the new officers. Plans were made and committee appointed for the reception to the teachers and Freshmen parents at the next regular meeting, September 15.

The president appointed the following as chairmen of departments: Mrs. Ferguson, hospitality; Mrs. Bentley, membership; Mr. A. J. Dalton, ways and means; Mrs. McKee, publicity; Mrs. Cohn, magazine and emblems.

All are looking forward to a very successful year, and judging by the enthusiasm shown by those present, they will not be disappointed.

At the close of the meeting, all went to the home of Past President Mrs. McKee, where an informal reception was being held for Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ghent. Mrs. Ghent was formerly Miss Evelyn McKee, and Mr. Ghent is the son of our past Secretary, Mrs. Cohn. Among those who wished the bride and groom much happiness were Mr. and Mrs. James Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Schmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Quirmbach, Mr. and Mrs. McIsaac, Mr. and Mrs. Hackley, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. McKee, Mrs. L. Braun, Mrs. McClements, Mrs. C. Pauw, Mrs. J. V. Jordan, Mrs. H. Cohn, Miss Effie Potter, Miss Bertha Koltz, Miss Marjorie Robinson, Miss Alice Ghent, Miss Alice Gray, Miss Marian Gray, Miss Florence Rancatore, Messrs. T. Bentley, Clive Saiz, Harland Stoddard, Stuart Ghent, Jas. McIssac and H. Sundermann. Refreshments were served during the evening.

SCOUT MOVEMENT LEADERS CHOSEN

At the last meeting of the Sub-Council, Boy Scouts of America, held in the City Hall, Daly City, August 18, permanent officers were elected and installed.

City Councilman Arthur J. Bodien was chosen for the office of chairman by unanimous ballot, and each member is quite certain that a better selection could not have been made. Mr. Bodien will continue to wield the gavel in the same efficient manner as in the past. He has devoted much of his spare time to the local Boy Scout movement, and the boys are very fortunate in having such a capable man as Mr. Bodien to act as one of their sponsors.

Mr. W. Sunderland, representative of the Eagles and one of the city's most popular traffic officers, was elected to the office of treasurer, and judging from the size of the "six-shooter" protruding from his holster, we feel sure that the funds will be well guarded.

Mr. L. W. Jonston, of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, was elected to the office of vice-chairman, and H. A. McHugh, also of the Veterans, was chosen secretary.

It was previously reported that the benefit dance and entertainment to be given by the Boy Scouts would be held on Saturday evening, September 26, but it has since been brought to their attention that this date had already been decided upon by the Associated Traffic Officers of San Mateo Coun[ty] for their dance to take place at Ta[n]foran. Therefore, it has been decid[ed] that the date of the Boy Scouts' dan[ce] would be extended to October 3, allo[w]ing both organizations an opportun[ity] to enjoy a large turnout at each ev[ent], and be assured of success. We tr[ust] the officers will reciprocate and l[end] their support to the Boy Scouts' da[nce] and entertainment.

The entertainment committee, c[om]posed of E. W. Norton and L. Janu[ary] those two peppy fellows from [the] American Legion, have promised [to] go into a huddle and present s[ome] real talent for the entertainm[ent] which promises to be a big featur[e] the dance. It has been rumored [that] Mr. January, who is not so cold [and] windy as his name implies, is [now] negotiating with his representativ[es] the Hawaiian Islands for a bev[y] beautiful Hula Hula girls. How[ever] a good time is assured all who come.

The Boy Scouts are planning the formation of a new unit in Daly City, so all of you young fellows who are not Scouts are invited to join. Scoutmasters Chester Smith, Al Brauns and W. Olsen are endeavoring to secure enough members to form a troop of Cubs and Scouts, and will be glad to sign up any of the Daly City boys who desire to become a Scout or Cub.

Members of the American Legion are advised to attend the next regular meeting, on Friday, August 28. The nomination of officers for the coming year will be in order, followed by the monthly dance, at which "Doc" and his gang will do their stuff.

TANFORAN RACES BEGIN NOVEMBER 6

Tanforan will open its gates for its Fall meeting of twenty-six days or more on Friday, November 6, racing daily except Sundays. This announcement was made yesterday by Joseph A. Murphy, director of racing, under authority of the board of directors of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association.

As these dates will come after the close of the Chicago season and practically after the close in Canada, Kentucky, and New York, a great hegira of followers of racing from these points to Northern California is expected. As a matter of fact, many of the better class of race goers have announced their intention of going there. This applies to those who usually attend the Fair Grounds at New Orleans, Miami and Havana, as these meetings will not open until the close of Tanforan, and there will be plenty of time for those who desire to take in both meetings.

There will be no purse less than $800, no race less than $1,000 where the claiming price is named by the racing secretary, and no handicap less than $1,200. In addition to this the following stakes will be run at the meeting:

The San Bruno for two year olds and upwards, $5,000 added, six furlongs.

The San Francisco Handicap for two year olds and upwards, $10,000 added, one mile and an eighth.

The Breeders' Handicap for two year olds, the property of members of the Pacific Coast Breeders Association and foaled west of the Continental Divide, $5,000 added, six furlongs.

The Thanksgiving Handicap for two year olds and upwards, $5,000 added, one mile and a sixteenth.

The San Mateo Handicap for two year olds, $5,000 added, six furlongs.

The California Handicap for two year olds and upwards, $5,000 added, one mile and a sixteenth.

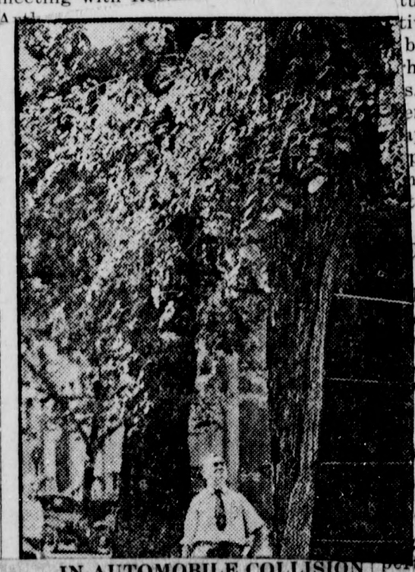
This will give a stake for Thanksgiving day and each Saturday of the meeting.

The same staff of competent officials that have been in charge at previous meetings will conduct the racing. These include: Stewards, Joseph A. Murphy, Herman P. Conkling and Floyd McKenna; Judges, W. R. Norvell, J. S. Rothert and Peter Clark; Starter, Harry Morrissey; Racing Secretary, W. R. Norvell; Clerk of Scales, J. S. Rothert; Paddock and Patrol Judge, James Gallagher; Resident Manager, R. C. MacArthur.

Web Everett will again be in charge of the jockey room, Dr. F. H. Smith will be the track physician, and Dr. C. Masoero the track veternarian. The handicapping this fall will be in the hands of a board of handicappers, with Judge Murphy as chairman, and W. R. Norvell, J. S. Rothert and R. C. Leighninger as members.

The Association purchased a Bahr Gate last year, which is now stored at Tanforan and which will be used during the meeting.

Judge Murphy will probably make a trip to San Francisco between the summer and fall meetings at Hawthorne, to go over the details of the meeting with Resident M[anager]



IN AUTOMOBILE COLLISION

E. R. Flood, of Oliver street, had a narrow escape last Monday night while driving his Ford to his home. Another Ford, driven by a young man in the employ of George and Anna Courting, of 701 Monterey boulevard, proprietors of Courting's Pharmacy, struck Flood's machine at the intersection of Hanover and Oliver streets. The driver of the Pharmacy machine admitted he was driving at the rate of 35 or 40 miles an hour, it is said. The Flood car was slightly damaged, while the other car had two broken wheels and a damaged body. The young driver was given first aid for head and facial cuts.

MOVE TO RECALL JUDGE COLLAPSES

The much advertised and freely discussed plan of certain individuals in San Mateo county to circulate petitions for the recall of Judge George H. Buck, because of his "instructed verdict" in the Flood case, came to an abrupt halt last Wednesday.

At a meeting of the members of the "Citizens' Recall Committee," held in Redwood City, a decision was reached to abandon the plan to put recall petitions in circuation. Had the advocates of the recall been successful in securing a recall election, it would have cost the taxpayers at least $35,000.

It is announced that only thirteen of the original twenty-six members of the committee were present at the meeting in Redwood City, and three of these resigned before the meeting was adjourned.

The committee's action is reported to have came after John Taafe, attorney for Mrs. Gavin, addressed an appeal to the committee not to proceed with their plan. Taafe also read letters from Mrs. Gavin and his partner, Maxwell McNutt, voicing the same desire.

El Carmelo Parlor No. 256, N. S. G. W. Drum Corps will sponsor their annual ball at Daly City Auditorium tomorrow evening. This is the event that means so much to the Drum Corps, as receipts from this affair will largely make up what support is obtained from the community they will represent in the September 9th parade. Come up and help this cause. You are assured a pleasant evening's entertainment.

EAGLES NEST

The regular meeting of the Eagles was held on Thursday evening with a large crowd in attendance. Ten new members were initiated.

The sick committee reported all the sick members convalescing.

The dance committee reported a neat sum was made by the dance held at the City Auditorium.

The booster committee had some interesting reports to make and assured the members of some good times in the coming months. One of the most important was the Ladies' night to be held on Saturday, August 29. A wonderful entertainment has been arranged, including vaudeville acts from the professional ranks. Contests of an amusing nature will please even the most fastidious, and dancing will complete the evening.

The meeting was enlivened with a little horse-play that brought the members to their feet.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

Last Friday evening Daly City Post No. 410 of the American Legion wound up a brilliant parade through Daly City and Colma by holding exercises in the high school auditorium. The purpose of the occasion was to dedicate the American flag which had been presented to the Post through Mayor H. H. Smith. Principal James Ferguson was one of the speakers. "It is most fitting," he said, "that the American Legion should meet within the walls of an American public school. In the long list of tasks which the Legion has undertaken there is none of greater importance than that of co-operating with the public schools in developing an intelligent citizenry in our country, for without an intelligent citizenry republican government cannot survive. You men of the American Legion are what is left of those who went across the seas to help make the world safe for democracy. History records the fact that you did the job well. The task of the American public school is to make democracy safe for the world. This, too, is an important task and your-cooperation in the performance of it is appreciated.

"Another task that the American army undertook in the World war was to see that there should be no more wars. The nation that sends forth its bravest and best to die on the field of battle is not only insane but is still in a state of barbarism. Brave men are sent to fight and be killed in battle in order that the so-called 'honor' of the nation may be upheld. And when a sufficient number have been killed, it is considered honorable to sit down and rationally discuss the questions at issue. Why not do this without the killing of men? Civilized men do not settle disputes by killing each other. They sit down and discuss the questions at issue and settle them according to principles of law. It is for the American Legion to help make the world realize that a nation, being only a number of individuals organized together, has no more right to settle disputes by killing or being killed than has an individual. Furthermore, when we think of the fact that Europe today is spending half a billion dollars a year more on war than it did in 1913, and that the United States of America is also spending vastly greater sums than before the World war—this in spite of the fact that in each country of Europe as well as in our own country there are millions of men out of employment, millions of them living upon public dole or private charity, and millions of men and women and children without sufficient food to eat, even in our own United States—we can only conclude that, insofar as international relations are concerned, and even insofar as some of their domestic affairs are concerned, the nations of the world are still in a state of barbarism, and perhaps worse."

Mr. Ferguson's address was enthusiastically received by the audience.

Night school is in full swing again, from 7 to 9 o'clock on Tuesdays and Thursdays. There are classes in English for Foreigners, Automechanics, Typewriting and Bookkeeping. These classes are free to adults living within the Jefferson Union high school district. Those who plan to enter any one of these classes are urged to enroll as soon as possible.

The band has been regularly organized under the leadership of Mr. Harry Waters, who has been engaged by the board as instructor. Practice is held in the Auto Mechanics build- ... and eighth periods every ... all

HOLD FIRST MEETING OF TERM

The first meeting of Longfellow P. T. A. this term was held Thursday, August 13, in the school auditorium. Mrs. Paul Springer, president of the Second District C. C. P. T., spoke on "Plans of the District," and invited the members to attend the meetings there. Mrs. Springer explained that the "District" was a gathering of presidents and delegates from the local units, and that all P. T. A. members were also welcome.

Mrs. Frank Eickhoff, counselor of the New Mission section, installed Mrs. A. D. Giannini as auditor of the unit.

A welcome was extended to all present by Miss Alice Chalmers, principal, who also spoke on the advantages of a "Study Group" and "Parental Education Class." These classes are to be organized in the Longfellow unit at an early date.

An interesting report was given by the new philanthropy chairman, Mrs. M. H. Wililams, and in answer to her plea, Longfellow will conduct a "Shoe Drive" this week, and the shoes will be taken to the District Philanthropy Center, Herman and Fillmore streets.

The hot lunch room opened on the first day of school, and the children of the school may purchase a nourishing meal at a small cost.

Miss Alice Hayes, vice-principal, spoke on the Longfellow P. T. A. picnic to be held in San Mateo Park, August 20, and all were invited to join in this "Mothers' Play Day." Mrs. L. W. Prestridge is in charge of arrangements.

Presidents, new members and visitors were given a hearty welcome, and refreshments were served by Mrs. Richard Stewart, hospitality chairman.

Gloria F. Roupe of Raymore, Mo., at 9 years, has lost only one match with 53 men and is rated as a first class sharpshooter.

A ROOSEVELT ANECDOTE

George B. Cortelyou, president of the Consolidated Gas Company, presents to the world an aspect of the deepest gravity which, as most of his friends are aware, conceals a well developed sense of humor. Mr. Cortelyou, it will be recalled, first came into national prominence as secretary to President McKinley. Later he held the same post with the late Theodore Roosevelt, and still later he was secretary of commerce and labor and secretary of the treasury.

This close association with the "Rough Rider" gave Mr. Cortelyou a rich fund of Roosevelt stories. One of the best is on himself. He tells, on occasions when some reference has been made to his solemnity of countenance, of a day when Roosevelt praised him for some meritorious bit of work, and then added:

"If I could only make you smile, George, I could make you President of the United States."—Forbes Magazine.

SAVINGS BY TRUST PLAN

Savings produced by realty trust managing of property, compared to the expense of receiverships, are revealed in a recent issue of Barron's Weekly, the well-known financial paper.

Banks are anxious to "clean up" bad building investment situations as soon as possible, and this generally means less returns for the investor, the article points out. The weekly contrasts this method with that of the George M. Forman Realty Trust, organized to protect the interests of holders of real estate mortgage bonds on twenty-seven buildings financed by George M. Forman & Co., of Chicago, on which interest payments had ceased.

In the case of the Trust, the publication states, bondholders who cooperate will get "somewhere near, if not quite, 100 per cent."

For one building, Barron's says, trust management increased gross income so that earnings were swelled from $2,700 under a receivership, to $11,735 under the trust.

Foreman bondholders throughout the United States have turned in more than $12,250,000 of their holdings in co-operating with the Trust.

MERCHANTS TO PLY REDWOOD CITY NINE

Step forward, you local baseball enthusiasts. Your rooting ability is needed when the Daly City Merchants travel to Redwood City next Sunday to oppose the Eagles aggregation of the county seat. The contest is scheduled to start at 2:30.

Fortified behind two very effective pitchers, Creighton Davies and Julio Bonetti, the local team will enter the Eagles' nest full of confidence. The Merchants will try to put over their third straight victory.

If a reputation means anything, the Redwood City contingent figures to win easily. Manager Schoettler has one of the strongest teams available. They have lost only a few games this year, and those victories were chalked up by the strongest teams in San Francisco.

Daly City has been hitting in the pinches lately, which will undoubtedly prove to be a big advantage, if they can repeat. With such men as Aiello, Rettig, Davies, Walsh and Cameron in the lineup, the local team will be anything but weak.

Science has so far failed to find a salve to allay the itch for office.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

At their annual picturesque summer picnic 100,000 Southern Californians, who formerly resided in Iowa, renewed home ties and thrilled to the spirit of the Hawkeye State in Bixby Park at Long Beach recently.

Asserting that changes have been made in the standard for No. 1 canning peaches and that canners and the California Peach Control Board have been unfair to growers, leaders of the San Joaquin Farm Bureau Federation are seeking a statewide investigation.

Repairs estimated at $25,000 are underway at the immigration station at Angel Island. More than twenty men will be employed for more than a month to complete the work. The listed repairs include the reconditioning of the landing wharf at a cost of $12,000, cleaning and painting all buildings and a new roof for the immigrant hospital.

The semi-annual report of the California Highway Patrol issued at Sacramento showed traffic officers made 23 per cent more arrests during the first half of this year than during the same period of 1930 but fines assessed by courts showed a decrease. There were 43,211 arrests, which resulted in fines totaling $147,960, compared with $161,473 collected the first half of last year.

California is obtaining every dollar of its State gasoline tax under the new collection law. Delinquencies are being paid off at an average of $80,000 a month. This was announced by Deputy State Controller Claude E. Cooper. The Champion Gasoline Company of Los Angeles, the plant of which was recently seized for non-payment of taxes, has notified Cooper, he added, that arrangements are being made to meet delinquent payments.

The annual grade crossing accident report of the Transportation Division of the Railroad Commission of California analyzed 2,756 such accidents during the year 1930. These resulted in 203 killed and 881 injured, as compared with 2,929 accidents, with 213 killed and 993 injured during the year 1929. This was a decrease of 5.9 per cent in the number of accidents, 4.2 in the number of killed, and 11.2 in the number of injured, or a decrease of 10 per cent in casualties.

Residents of Mt. Shasta City are smiling golden smiles as a result of the discovery that the spring from which the city water supply comes is full of gold-bearing sand. The discovery was made by city water department employes in giving the spring its annual cleaning. Another discovery of interest was made when part of a gold rocker was found buried under the roots of a tree in the spring, indicating that the spot had once been the scene of operations of a prospector. The rocker was nailed together with cut-iron nails, showing that it had been made not less than fifty years ago.

Agricultural Inspector Calvin Delphey has warned walnut growers in the Chino region that the red spider menace is more prevalent than in several years, and that immediate steps must be taken to halt spread of the infestation. Several growers have already realized the crop danger, Delphey stated, and have begun sulphur treatment. No damage has been discovered in groves sprayed against husk fly this year, according to announcement of Dr. A. M. Boyce, entomologist. Tests conducted on the Eastman property here have revealed a marked decrease in the husk fly ravage. Although walnut crops in Northern California districts have suffered in some cases as much as 50 per cent loss from the heat, inspectors declare the Chino region will have little damage to report from this source.

Advances of five miles per hour in the legal speed limits in certain zones of motor travel are now in effect. New signs indicating the increased speeds are being erected by the California State Automobile Association, official road signing agency for the northern California territory. In business districts the new markers designate a limit of 20 miles; in residence sections 25 miles; and in open country 45 miles. Motorists are being cautioned to observe these limits carefully. It is also pointed out that the law stipulates that these speeds are legal only when traffic conditions and the surface and width of a roadway permit them to be made without endangering life or property. Emphasis is being given to the fact that the limit of fifteen miles per hour remains unchanged at intersections or railroad grade crossings where the driver's view is obstructed; on "blind" curves; and in school zones.

Melons of extraordinary weight and size are raised this year by W. S. Fife, operator of several local truck farms at Gridley. He picked a Persian melon recently weighing 25 pounds, and a Tip Top melon weighing 14 pounds.

With one State park site of 160 acres donated to the public by the E. L. Doheny interests and with the recent purchase of another State park at San Clemente, the problem of maintenance and improvement is facing the State authorities, inquiries at the Courthouse at Santa Ana revealed.

Since the road work on the Elkhorn highway to Sacramento has been completed travel has increased four times.

Charles Alexander and Leslie Edwards, ranchers, of the Stony Ford district, near Willows, have declared war on hunters. Alexander has lost his only horse, due to a hunter mistaking it for a deer, and Edwards went into his alfalfa patch recently and found his two pet bucks dead. Both animals had been shot while grazing near the Edwards home.

Edward S. Hicks, Fillmore deer hunter, stood on a ledge in the Ojai mountains, scanning the horizon for his prey. His foot slipped and down he tumbled, a distance of more than twenty-five feet. He landed astride the back of a 150 pound buck which had been standing below him, unseen to the hunter. Hicks said he rode the buck cowboy fashion, holding on to the antlers for a short distance before being thrown. Then he picked up his gun and killed the deer. At least, that's Hicks' story, which was substantiated by members of the deer slayer's party returning from the mountains recently.

California is studying methods by which other States run their legislatures with the hope of improving procedure here. Pursuant to a resolution adopted by the 1931 Assembly a special committee composed of Assemblymen Patterson, Sewell and Roland was appointed. This committee is to meet some time during September in San Francisco and consider information gathered by its secretary. C. W. Booth of the legislative counsel bureau, during his visit to seven States since the California Legislature adjourned. Booth brought back many suggestions as to how the California Assembly may speed its work, including the use of electrical voting systems instead of the old call method, unification of Assembly and Senate committees or smaller and more powerful committees.

With the filing of 85,189 signatures from five counties, the referendum against Assembly Bill 1957, which gives the State Director of Finance power to sell abandoned river channels, qualified recently, it was announced by Secretary of State Jordan. The number of names required was 69,257. Signatures were filed with Jordan as follows: Los Angeles county, 49,467; San Francisco, 18,296; Alameda, 12,787; San Diego, 4254, and Contra Costa, 385. Rolland A. Vandegrift, State Director of Finance, asserts the referendum will make effective on the 14th inst., the provisions of Senate Bill 517, giving the Director of Finance the power to lease tide lands for oil drilling. One of the purposes of Assembly Bill 1957, said Vandegrift, was to repeal the lease provisions of Senate Bill 517, which was signed first by Gov. Rolph.

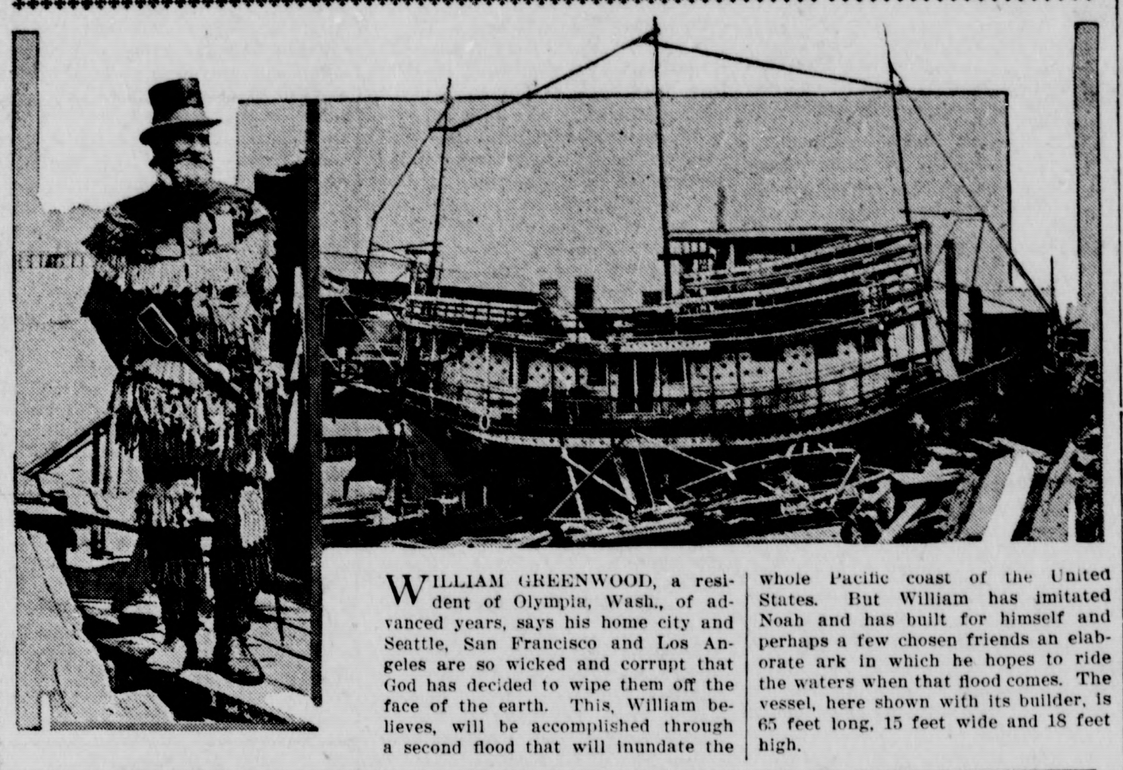
The California Mushroom Company which has a plant at Rivera is finding a good market for its product in Los Angeles, according to the manager, R. S. Savary. The plant occupies five acres and produces approximately 700 pounds of mushrooms a day. The growing of mushrooms, Mr. Savary says, is highly specialized and requires no little skill and care. The spawn from which they are grown is shipped in from Pennsylvania, arriving here in sealed milk bottles. In the course of time it is hoped that local spawn can be produced. It requires two months from planting to mature the mushroom, and the beds then bear for three months. The temperature is kept below 60 degrees and humidity is necessary, too. When the company started operations the Los Angeles market men thought 150 pounds of mushrooms a day would be ample. Now, according to Mr. Savary, they would be glad to get 2000 pounds daily, and the delicacies are imported from eastern plants to satisfy the demand.

At last the General Sherman-General Grant duel has been officially decided. And in effect the fight, which has been waged for years, might be called a draw. Six learned engineers, experts in the age and habits of the sequoia gigantea, have awarded the palm to the General Sherman as the largest living thing in the world, but have decreed that the General Grant is the oldest. The engineers' findings were announced simultaneously in San Francisco and Fresno by the California State Chamber of Commerce and the Fresno Chamber of Commerce. The organizations asserted in their announcement that the engineers also had settled the status of two other challengers, the Boole and Hart trees. They are placed third and fourth respectively in the big tree race. For the first time, the two chambers say, exact, complete measurements of the forest giants have been obtained. It required more than 1000 transit calculations. The time of twelve men for a full working week was devoted to the job. In board feet the engineers rate the trees as follows: General Sherman, 600,120; General Grant, 542,748; Boole, 496,728; Hart, 410,952.

Fred Baughman, who handled the United States frost reports in Imperial Valley last year, will be reassigned to the El Centro district next year, it has been announced.

Western Pacific and Great Northern steel will meet at Bieber in time to permit operation of freight trains over the new rail link between Keddie and Klamath Falls, Oregon, in November, it was predicted at Western Pacific offices at San Francisco. The date for inaugurating passenger service remains undetermined.

He's All Ready With an Ark for Second Flood



WILLIAM GREENWOOD, a resident of Olympia, Wash., of advanced years, says his home city and Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles are so wicked and corrupt that God has decided to wipe them off the face of the earth. This, William believes, will be accomplished through a second flood that will inundate the whole Pacific coast of the United States. But William has imitated Noah and has built for himself and perhaps a few chosen friends an elaborate ark in which he hopes to ride the waters when that flood comes. The vessel, here shown with its builder, is 65 feet long, 15 feet wide and 18 feet high.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

FLATHORNS THE MOOSE IS SMART

PETER RABBIT was so excited that he couldn't sit still as he listened to the story told by Honker the Goose of how Flathorns the Moose had got even with the hunter and had kept him in a tree all night. When Honker paused as if that were the end of the story, Peter's curiosity prompted him to ask a question right away.

"Did the hunter get away?" he asked breathlessly.

"I guess that hunter would be there yet, if it hadn't been for other hunters," said he. "Every little while all night he would shout at the top of his lungs. I guess it made old Flathorns grin to hear him. Every time he shouted Flathorns would come out of hiding and snort and butt the tree. Just after daybreak I heard an answering shout way off in the distance, and I knew then that some one was coming. I wondered if Flathorns heard or if he was so filled with rage that he had forgotten to watch out, or if he thought because he had frightened this hunter almost to death he could do the same to any other hunter. The one in the tree began to shout a great many things. I guess he was warning whoever was coming to look out for Flathorns.

"Did the Hunter Get Away?" He Asked Breathlessly.

"Flathorns rushed out and stamped and snorted just as he had been doing, but he was smart. He usually is. While he was doing everything he could to scare that hunter he was watching even if he didn't seem to be. By and by I saw another hunter with a terrible gun creeping up very slowly and carefully so as not to make a sound and got where he could shoot Flathorns. I had just opened my mouth to warn Flathorns when I saw him stop stamping and stand perfectly still looking and listening. I knew then that he knew that danger was near, so I held my tongue, I wanted to see if he would try to chase this other hunter up a tree, but he was too smart for that. He knew that this hunter would be ready with his fire stick, so he just melted away. Yes, sir, that is what he did, just melted away. One minute he was there in plain sight, and the next he was nowhere to be seen. He had stolen off through the woods so quietly that he didn't make a sound. I don't know how such a big fellow as he is can do it, but he can. There wasn't a rustle of a leaf to tell where he had gone.

"When the other hunter came up there wasn't a sign of Flathorns excepting the smashed fire-stick and the torn-up ground and the bark rubbed off the tree by his horns. The hunter in the tree scrambled down, and after a little the two of them went off, but the one who had been in the tree kept turning his head every other minute, and he looked scared to death. I guess he won't hunt Flathorns again in a hurry. I don't know how Flathorns knew when it was time to slip away, for after the first shout the second hunter made no sound.

He seemed to know just how long he could safely stay and just when it was time to go. He's smart, Flathorns is."

"He has to be in order to live," growled Buster Bear in his deep grumbly-rumbly voice. "I wish he had chased that other hunter and taught him a lesson too. If a few more hunters were hunted, I guess these men things would learn how it feels and then we people of the Great Woods and the Green Forest might have a fair chance."

Peter drew a long breath. "That was a splendid story," said he. "I would like to see old Flathorns. Tell us some more about the Great Woods."

"Not tonight," replied Honker. "I came here to rest, for I've had a long journey, and I'm very tired." With this Honker settled himself to sleep in the middle of the pond of Paddy the Beaver.

VACATION DISHES

FOR a picnic or afternoon garden party, try these little cakes:

Cup Cakes.

Sift two cupfuls of flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of salt. Add one cupful of chopped nut meats, one package of dates, sliced; mix these well with the flour mixture. Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar gradually, then two beaten eggs. Add the dry ingredients alternately with one cupful of crushed pineapple. Bake in small cups, cover with icing and sprinkle with coconut in any desired color. This recipe makes four dozen cakes.

Ice Cream Cake Pudding.

Beat the yolks of three eggs until light, add three-fourths of a cupful of sugar gradually. Mix well, add two tablespoonfuls of juice and grated rind of orange. Fold in one-fourth of a cupful of cracker crumbs, one-half of a package of dates, one-half cupful of chopped nuts, one teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix well, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs and spread evenly in a shallow pan lined with waxed paper. Bake in a slow oven forty-five minutes. Cool, cut in cubes, serve in stemmed glasses with ice cream.

Collegiate Sandwiches.

Spread one slice of bread lightly buttered with peanut butter. Cover with a layer of dates. Spread a second slice of buttered bread with currant or cranberry jelly. Put the slices together in pairs. One-half package of dates, one-half cupful of peanut butter, will be sufficient for a dozen sandwiches the size that college boys and girls like.

Graham Cracker Pie.

Roll one and one-half dozen graham crackers, mix with one-third of a cupful of melted butter, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of cream. Line a pie plate with this mixture, pressing hard to the bottom and sides. Fill with the following filling: one pint of milk, three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, three beaten egg yolks, one-half cupful of sugar, with salt and flavoring to taste. Cook until thick and cover the cracker mixture. Top with a meringue, using the three egg whites to which has been added three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Sprinkle the top of the meringue with finely chopped nuts and graham cracker crumbs. Bake long enough to brown the meringue.

AN INEXCUSABLE RECORD

The accident problem is of vital interest to every citizen.

During 1930 accidents accounted for the deaths of 99,000 persons, and 10,000,000 injuries. For these accidents the American people paid $3,250,000,000.

Only five diseases causes more deaths than accidents, and between the ages of five and fourteen, accidents in this country is twice as high as in the principal European countries. The motor vehicle leads all other causes, accounting for 33,000 deaths in 1930, followed by home accidents with 30,000 and industrial accidents totalling 19,000.

But there is a brighter side to the accident picture. Child deaths have been decreased by persistent "safety" education. Accidents have been reduced 28 per cent in two years by 1600 industrial concerns reporting to the National Safety Coucil. The number of commercial trucks involved in accidents had gone down 19 per cent since 1927. And, in scheduled air transport, the death rate declined 87 per cent from 1928 to 1930.

But when 82,000 people can be killed in a single year in automobiles, homes and industries, every motorist, every employer and employe and all other citizens must recognize their own individual responsibility to help reduce the accident toll.

An Illinois plumber, blown out of a ditch by a gas explosion, executed the quickest movement ever recorded of a member of his craft.

We read that a Washington woman lost a purse containing $15 and later found it with nearly $100 tucked in its folds. Now you tell one.

NAGATA'S COMET

When Masana Nagata knocked off work as foreman of melon patch laborers near Brawley, Calif., on the evening of July 15, he was unknown throughout the scientific world, for that night he discovered a new comet which had escaped the eyes of all astronomers up to that time.

His discovery was made with a three-inch telescope, and reported to the great Mt. Wilson Observatory, where the genuineness of his find was verified. The new celestial visitor has since been observed by many astronomers and its orbit has been computed. It is some 167 million miles away and is receding from the earth. It will never be close enough to be visible to the naked eye. It has been named Nagata's comet in honor of its discoverer, as is customary in such cases.

Nagata is a Japanese, 45 years old, who has been interested in astronomy since he was a child, but only during the last 10 years has he possessed a telescope with which to pursue his study of the heavens. His only instruction in astronomy was obtained through a correspondence school course, and he frankly admits that he is only an amateur.

He will continue to till the soil by day and watch the stars at night, but his name will be perpetuated by the wandering comet which his keen eye discovered after professional astronomers with the finest telescopes had overlooked it.

PRISON SENTENCES

There is much in the new theory of indeterminate prison sentences for criminals to commend it wider adoption, at least as an experimental measure for the protection of society. The idea is that when convicted of a serious crime, the offender should be restrained until he gives evidence of a genuine intention to be good.

As we understand it, under this plan the criminal is treated somewhat as an insane person is treated. An insane person is not sent to an asylum for an definite period, but is supposed to be kept there until his condition improves sufficiently to make his release safe. If his condition can not be so improved, he stays for life.

There is a similarity between the lunatic and the criminal in that both are sick. One is mentally sick; the other is morally sick. Both can often be cured by proper treatment. The condition of each should be determined by experts before turning him loose. At least that is the theory of the indeterminate sentence—and it seems sensible.

WOMEN IN POLITICS

To those who decry the advent of women in politics and official life the dismissal of Mrs. Jean Hortense Norris from her position as New York's first woman magistrate will appear as an additional argument for their prejudice against office-holding by the fair sex.

Justices of the State Supreme Court before whom Judge Norris was tried, unanimously ordered her removal from office, finding her guilty of altering court records to cover up her unfairness to helpless women "framed" for moral offenses; of owning stock in a bonding company operating in her court; of disregarding the constitutional rights of defendants, and of selling her official name to advertise a commercial product.

All of these offenses came to light after she had served as magistrate nearly twelve years, besides enjoying an enviable reputation as a leader in many political and social movements.

As a general proposition, however, Mrs. Norris' fall from grace proves nothing for or against the participation of women in public affairs. It merely demonstrates anew what every student of human nature knew already—that probity is not an exclusive attribute of either sex, but that good and evil struggles for mastery in the hearts and minds of men and women alike.

FIGHT THE FIRE MENACE

This country needs intensive public movement against fire waste.

It cannot too often be repeated that the individual is generally solely responsible for the gigantic annual fire toll in lives and property. The fire insurance industry, aided by various public and private organizations and groups, carries on an unceasing, year-round work in an effort to promote better understanding of fire hazards, fire resistive building construction, more adeguate fire-fighting facilities, and building inspections. This work has certainly not failed—without it our fire waste would reach a far larger total than at present.

Fire prevention is mainly a matter of using one's eyes and one's common sense. If wiring is regularly inspected, corners kept free of accumulations and chimneys and heating plants cleaned and examined, the average property's chances of burning will be small.

Let's give fire the careful treatment it deserves—and by doing that, save the greater part of the half-billion dollars of property and the ten thousand lives that the "red menace" destroys each year.

ROBOT PILOTS WARSHIP

Perhaps the most amazing performance of a radio-controlled ship seen so far was that of the United States destroyer Stoddert, off San Diego, Calif., recently, when according to a press dispatch, "everything from whistle to rudder was operated by radio from the bridge of the control ship Perry which followed in its wake."

One maneuver directed from the control vessel by radio was a 180-degree turn, caused by pressing certain keys on the bridge of the Perry. The Stoddert, without a single man on board, turned entirely around without slackening speed. The speed was changed at will, searchlights were operated, the whistle was blown, and other interestinng stunts were performed in obedience to the radio impulses sent from the Perry.

In warfare a ship equipped with this radio apparatus might be used to ram enemy vessels or carry torpedoes to be automatically released among them, and play havoc generally.

The pity is that so many of the most remarkable inventions of man are capable of use only for purposes of destruction.

Always compose your love letters with a view to their possible effect upon the jury.

Eskimo singing has reached America by radio and is said to be nearly as bad as our own.

TY COBB STANDS FIRST

Picking the greatest figures in various lines of activity is a mild but often interesting sport, and a jury of twelev old-timers recently indulged in the pastime of selecting the outstanding baseball players of history.

An average of the ratings given by the individual jurors lists the heroes of the diamond in this order: Ty Cobb, Hans Wagner, Babe Ruth, Nap Lajoie, Eddie Collins, Willie Keeler, Al Simmons and Tris Speaker.

Seven of the twelve judges picked Ty Cobb as the greatest baseball player of all time, while most of the others gave him second place. The opinion of Cobb's admirers was well expressed by Connie Mack, one of the judges, who said:

"Picking the greatest player that ever lived is easy, I think. I pick Ty Cobb. He was a good fielder, the greatest base runner in the game's history, the fastest thinker, and the most consistent hitter. How can you name anyone else?"

LOOKING FOR THINGS

Did you ever stop to think how much time we waste every day looking for things which have been misplaced? We misplace a letter or document and spend half an hour looking for it. Often several minutes are consumed in searching for a hat or pair of spectacles. Some frequently forget where they have parked the car.

This waste of time through lack of care in putting things in their proper places was called to our attention by a very timely article in a newspaper which has just come to our desk. It is such a fine article, so full of good common sense and practicle advice, that we shall clip it out for our scrap-book at once.

Now where in the dickens did we put those scissors?

A scientist asserts that the human eye emits a mysterious force. Those who have faced the cold glitter of a banker's gaze will agree.

Japanese judges are studying American jury methods; probably with a view to avoiding such antiquated practices.

APPROVE GROUND PLANS FOR ALAMEDA AIR DEPOT

That actual construction of the Army's new air depot at Alameda will get under way shortly was indicated last Saturday with the receipt of approved layout plans for the new field by Captain Leander Larson, Q. M. C., constructing Quartermaster in charge of the work.

The plans for the field layout just received include provisions for an administration building 100x180 feet, a main depot supply building 334x480 feet, a hangar 200x440 feet, heating plant, quartermaster warehouse, utility building and garage, pumping station, radio station, fuel oil storage tanks, lighter dock, and various other small buildings and installations to make the new field the most modern and up to date air corps supply depot on the Pacific Coast.

With the receipt of the layout plans, bids for grading equipment and the grading of the field will be called for at once. So far $743,000 for the project has been appropriated by Congress, although Captain Larson stated that the total cost of the field known as "Benton Field" will probably run in the neighborhood of $2,700,000.

Preparations are under way for the construction of a temporary shed to house grading equipment, and plans and specifications for drilling a well are now being prepared in the office of the Quartermaster General, at Washington, D. C. Captain Larsen's announcement stated that these are expected to arrive here in the near future.

SHOALS BIDS WANTED

Muscle Shoals, a great indsutrial project which has been the plaything of politicians since the war, is again in the news, and a brand-new commission of nine members is wrestling with the problem of how to dispose of it.

Three members of the commission were appointed by President Hoover, three represent Alabama and three represent Tennessee—the body being formed in accordance with the president's suggestion last spring when he vetoed the Norris Muscle Shoals measure.

The commission at its first formal meeting in Florence, Ala., early this month issued an invitation for bids from private concerns which might be interested in taking over the project, including the proposed Cove Creek dam. These bids are to be considered at another meeting of the commission to be held September 1.

It is said that the American Farm Bureau Federation will submit a proposal at that time, with a view to utilizing the properties for the manufacture of fertilizer and possibly other commodities in the interest of agriculture.

The commission appears to be unanimously opposed to any scheme that would put the goverment into the fertilizer or power business, as was sought to be done by the Norris so-called government operation plan. It is somewhat encouraging to note that the actions taken by the commission at its first meeting were all by unanimous vote, and the personnel of the body is such as to inspire the confidence of the public.

If the politicians will keep their hands off for a while and give the commission a chance to evolve a practical solution of the problem, it is possible that such a solution may be found. In any event, it is certain that the country will hear much more about Muscle Shoals during the forthcoming session of Congress.

COST OF LIVING DECLINES

Last June living costs were 6.5 per cent lower than in December, and 9.8 per cent below June of the previous year. Food prices dropped nearly 14 per cent in the half year that ended in June, and smaller decreases occurred in the cost of rent, house furnishings, fuel, light and other items.

From the peak of prices in June, 1920, to June , 1931, the cost of living went down 30.6 per cent. Thus, if the wage earner today is earning the same salary he received in 1920, his income is almost one-third greater.

John McCormack's life is insured for a million dollars, but we'd hate to risk that much on a radio crooner.

THE STORY

Harold Norman Atridge, an orphan, lives with his great aunt Matilda, who reared him. At her death he finds himself penniless. At the close of the war he gets work in a bank. Taking a message to Marjorie Clarence, he finds her father in the throes of delirium tremens. Harold promises to take Marjorie into the country next day. They have an exciting day. They miss the last train back to London. On his way to his lodgings, Harold sees a shooting affray during which one of the participants tosses a leather case to him. It contains letters in French written by King Raphael of Lesser Avaria.

Harold was busy shoving the case of letters down into the bottom of the bed where they might lie hidden while he was dressing.

The precaution proved unnecessary, for Puddingface grabbed the overcoat which stood to him in place of a dressing gown and paddled off in his slippers down to the bathroom. Harold scrambled out of bed—goodness but he was stiff!—and began to put on his clean underwear. Standing in his vest and pants he took the case in his hands. The strap had broken between two holes, and it was a simple matter to splice it together with a screw-in cuff link. Then he put the case over his shoulders and put on his shirt. He realized that the letters were precious and ought to be looked after, even although he did not properly appreciate yet the fact that they were considerably more dangerous to their possessor than twice their weight in dynamite.

As Harold shaved a gradual feeling of better being came back to him. It certainly was rather good to have some adventures sometimes. It would be nice to return those letters to the king of the Huns—he would probably receive a royal letter of thanks in exchange, or something equally splendid. Harold had acquired from Great-aunt Matilda a proper respect for the Lord's anointed, even if they did write filthy letters to Parisian enchantresses.

And Marjorie. Harold became conscious that he was urgently anxious to see Marjorie again, although in his unfortunate newly awakened condition of half an hour ago he had felt just the opposite. He wanted to see her smile, and to feel again the touch of her little lips on his cheek. He promptly decided to call at Ashford road immediately after dinner, and the very thought quickened his breath and made a new man of him. He even whistled as, with the price of a throne between his shoulder blades, he went upstairs again.

Midday dinner on Sundays at Scae Fell View was usually a happy function. Today it might have been spoiled for Harold by Mrs Pound's pointed question as to how he was (it has already been mentioned that Mrs. Pound looked askance at lie-abed lodgers because of the dislocation of routine they brought about) were it not for the fact that he had far too much to think about already. Mrs. Pound's remarks, barbed questions from Marks and Brierly as to how he enjoyed himself last night, threadbare witticisms from Danvers about black eyes, they all rattled harmlessly off Harold's armor of new things to think about. Not every one encounters first love, a murder and a royal scandal on one and the same day.

With dinner over, Harold decided to go at once to Ashford road. He seized his hat and issued forth.

There were two strangers in Scae Fell avenue as he went along it. He hardly noticed them, but they looked keenly at him as he passed. Both were fairly smartly dressed, and one was obviously English. The other was a foreigner. The two looked at him, exchanged a word together, and then the foreigner turned casually back and walked in the same direction as Harold fifty yards behind him, while the other continued to stroll, very slowly, down Scae Fell avenue.

Harold's way took him under the railway bridge (how well he remembered staggering under it last night, half dead!) and out once more across Morley common. Harold looked keenly and with interest for traces of last night's battle. There were not many. On the pavement where the cars had stopped were two dark marks, as if made by drops of blood. Along the footpath where Harold had stood was a dark smear in the dust, which also might have been blood, but the dust was too thick for it to be obvious. No casual inspection would reveal last night's doings to anyone.

The antagonists must have carried off the dead man and made all shipshape as soon almost as Harold had escaped. Harold felt glad of that; he was not at all anxious to be mixed up in a murder trial, and he cared neither one way nor the other apart from that as to whether justice were dealt out to the slayer. He had taken a chance, just as had the man who was shot, and it was no concern of anyone's, least of all Harold's, to load the dice against him after he had been lucky enough to win the first cast.

Then he came to Ashford road, and quickened his step with a touch of pleasurable anticipation. He knocked at the door and waited, anxiously but happily.

Alas, alas for Harold! Cerberus in the form of Mrs. Tilling opened the door to him, and promptly flew at him, snapping triple-jawed. Harold quailed and wilted before the violence of this offensive. No, he could not see Marjorie, and if Mrs. Tilling could manage it he would not see her again, either. She was in bed, worn out and with a shocking cold acquired by tramping over the country with a lout who ought to have known better, and by rides in motor cars which could only be the accompaniment of the worst kind of sin.

The very idea! (This was in reply to Harold's timid suggestion that he might be allowed to address a few words to Marjorie, under Mrs. Tilling's chaperonage, through the crack of her door.) That showed the sort of man he was, undoubtedly. Harold could clear off and not soil her doorstep again. Mrs. Tilling, drunk with power, and with Marjorie in bed, in full command of the situation, slammed the door. Harold remained before it for two seconds standing on one foot, shifted onto the other one for another two seconds, and turned reluctantly away. The world was a dark and unhappy place, all of a sudden.

At the corner of Ashford road the foreign gentleman was doing up his shoelace, and only ceased the operation as Harold walked past him on the Common again, but it did not make much impression on him. Truth to tell, he had forgotten that a king's ransom nestled against his spine; his thoughts were too full of a chit of a girl.

He made his sorrowful way over to the bench on which—goodness gracious, it was only two days ago; it seemed more like two years—he had made the memorable promise to escort Marjorie into the country. He sat down and devoted a solemn half hour to making himself more miserable than ever. He could not see Marjorie. He could not go to the club. He was worried and bothered. He did not know what he ought to do next. What should a young man do when he is denied access to his lady love by a termagant of a guardian? He made up his mind to write to Marjorie. He heaved himself off his bench and began to stride back to Scae Fell View, with his spirits faintly raised by the prospect. And a man in foreign clothes at the same time raised himself from a neighboring bench and proceeded in the same direction.

Penguins Prefer Ice

When eight penguins arrived recently in Europe to be transferred to a Continental zoo, they caused great trouble because they found the climate too warm. The penguin, whose home is in the Antarctic, loves cold weather, and officials tried to devise a means of keeping them cool. All plans failed until a big "ice box" was built for them, and a "house" of heavy planks, with a roof of heat-resisting tar paper, was erected in the box. Each day, 500 pounds of ice, cut in layers, was spread on the floor, and then the birds were quite happy. They slept on the ice—standing up, as is their way! Shrubs and greens surround the "house," and there was a lake where the birds could satisfy their natural love for water.

Odd Methods of Fishing

Natives of some sections of India have several unusual methods of catching fish, Popular Mechanics Magazine says. In Assam, fishermen crouch on the banks of shallow lakes and emit a shrill whistle which attracts a species of mountain fish. Lured by the sound, this fish darts into the open palms of the whistler and is caught. In other places the direct rays of the sun force mountain fish to seek shelter beneath or beside rocks along the banks of streams. The cunning hillman crawls to a bowlder behind which a fish is hiding, strikes the rock a heavy blow with his steel-shod club, and catches the fish, stunned by the sound vibrations.

YOUR UNITED STATES

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IF YOU want to learn more about the country in which you live than you have ever known before, send fifty cents to the superintendent of documents at the United States government printing office in Washington and tell him to send you Bulletin No. 817 of the United States geological survey. The other name for that publication is, "Boundaries, Areas, Geographic Centers and Altitudes of the United States and the Several States," but don't let that formidable-sounding title daunt you. For in this 265-page, paper-covered book by Edward M. Douglas you'll find more interesting facts than in all the history and geography books you studied at school.

It's a big country, this United States of America. You'll never appreciate just how big it is until you read the statistics given in the last two pages of Bulletin 817. "From Greenland's icy mountain to India's coral strand" is the familiar and poetical way of expressing the extreme ends of the earth. But the distance suggested in that expression is as nothing compared to the distance between the northernmost and southernmost points in the territory over which the Stars and Stripes float. Point Barrow, the extreme north point of Alaska, is nearly 5,000 miles north of the equator and Rose inlet in the Samoan group, the farthest south American land, is exactly 1,000 miles south of it. Claims that may be based upon the Byrd explorations and discoveries of 1929-30 in the Antarctic region may put the American flag even farther south so that we may be able to match England's boast of "dominion over palm and pine" with one which mentions "from pole to pole."

Few of us may ever get the chance to go from one end of the American possessions to the other, but in these days of the automobile and improved roads any of us can get acquainted with the extent of the "mainland" of our country. Suppose you decide to make a "circle tour" of your country—follow its boundary lines until you're back where you started from. How far do you suppose you will have gone? Exactly 17,936 miles. Driving steadily at the rate of 40 miles an hour and putting in 12 hours a day it would take you five weeks and two days to make such a trip.

Here's the mileage: Start at West Quoddy Head, near Eastport, Maine, (the easternmost point on the "mainland" of the United States) and drive west following the northern boundary all the way, including the water boundary through the Great Lakes until you reach Cape Alva, Wash. (the westernmost point). By that time you will have covered 3,987 miles. Follow the Pacific coastline down to the Mexican border and you will add 2,730 more miles. Turn east along the Mexican border and it's 2,013 miles until you get to the gulf of Mexico. Follow its shoreline of 3,641 miles until you round Florida, then head north and after 5,565 miles along the Atlantic ocean you will be back at West Quoddy Head with 17,936 miles behind you.

Or if you don't care for the "circle tour" and want to make a direct route from the two points farthest apart in the United States, start at Cape Flattery, Wash., and travel southeast until you reach a point on the Florida coast south of Miami. You will have covered 2,835 miles.

Would you like to have the experience of being at the highest and the lowest points in the United States in the matter of altitude? You don't have to go from one end of the country to the other to do that. You can go from the highest to the lowest points in less than an hour—that is, if you use an airplane. For they are only 86 miles apart. Sail over the summit of Mount Whitney in Inyo, Tulare county, in California (altitude 14,496 feet above sea level) then swoop down less than three miles to the Death valley in Inyo county and you will be 276 feet below sea level.

But even more interesting than these geographical facts in Bulletin 817 is the American history which you will learn from reading about the boundaries of the individual states and looking at the maps which illustrate its pages. Have you ever wondered why some of our states have the queer shapes that they have?

The peculiar irregularities of some of the state boundaries are due to compromises made to adjust differences between the representatives of the states. The "Southwick Jog," for example, which appears on the boundary between Connecticut and Massachusetts was established because in adjusting errors in the boundary, as previously run by compass, a long, narrow strip of land was given to Connecticut and the "jog" ceded to Massachusetts was intended to be an equivalent area.

The panhandle at the southeast corner of Missouri is said to be the result of efforts of a prominent landowner to have his plantation included in the new state. The projection on the northern boundary of Minnesota, which includes a land area of about 124 square miles separated from the main part of Minnesota by the Lake of the Woods, resulted from the use of inaccurate maps of the treaty makers.

Probably the most widely-known boundary in the United States is the "Mason and Dixon line" between Pennsylvania and Maryland, run by two famous English mathematicians in 1763-1767.

The accuracy of their survey is shown by the fact that in a resurvey 130 years later, with modern instruments and methods, the position found for the northeast corner of Maryland differed only 180 feet from their position. The original stones for five-mile marks on this line were carved in England from limestone and are still standing, with Lord Baltimore's coat of arms on the Maryland side and the Penn arms on the Pennsylvania side.

The east-west part of the boundary between Massachusetts and Rhode Island was for more than 200 years a matter of dispute that was in some respects the most remarkable boundary question with which this country has had to deal. Twice the question went to the Supreme court of the United States, and in one of these suits Daniel Webster and Rufus Choate were employed as counsel for Massachusetts. Choate, to illustrate the indefiniteness of certain boundary lines, said before the Massachusetts legislature:

"The commissioners might as well have decided that the line between the states was bounded on the north by a bramble bush, on the south by a blue jay, on the west by a hive of bees in swarming time and on the east by 500 foxes with firebrands tied to their tails."

How boundary lines have changed during the years from the first English settlement to the present time is well illustrated in the case of the state of Virginia. The Virginia Charter of 1609 included the area extending west to the "South Sea," that is, the Pacific ocean, called Mar del Sur (South Sea) by Balboa in 1513, when he first saw it at a place where the shore line runs nearly east and west. In 1609 no one knew how far away from the Atlantic the "South Sea" was, and some of the other colonies had charters stating the same western limit.

Along the Atlantic coast Virginia extended from a point 200 miles north of Point Comfort to a point the same distance south. So at one time Virginia owned all of what is now North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Maryland, and Delaware and parts of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania. But in the next century and a half she lost a large part of that territory. The Carolina charters of 1663-1665 took away from her the land south of the present southern boundaries. Lord Baltimore's Maryland colony deprived her of the Chesapeake Bay region. After the Revolution she ceded to the new republic in 1784 the territory northwest of the Ohio river. In 1792, Kentucky was organized as a separate state by her consent and in 1862 when the Civil war rent the nation what is now West Virginia was separated from the mother state.

Indiana is another state which once comprised a vast area, including all of Illinois and Wisconsin, most of Michigan and a large part of Minnesota. Perhaps the largest territory once held by a present state was that of Missouri. In 1812 the name of the territory of Louisiana was changed to territory of Missouri and at the time it included all of the original Louisiana Purchase except the present state of Louisiana. But gradually Missouri, territory and state, was whittled down, losing most of Oklahoma and Arkansas to the latter in 1819 and parts of Texas, Colorado, Kansas and New Mexico to Spain in the same year. In 1834 Missouri lost all of Iowa, and parts of Minnesota, North and South Dakota to Michigan and in 1854 most of Montana, the rest of North and South Dakota, parts of Wyoming and Colorado and all of Nebraska to the latter and to Kansas, when the Kansas and Nebraska territories were organized in that year.

DALY CITY TEAM DEFEATS ANTLERS

Playing flawless ball in the pinches, the Daly City Merchants chalked up their closest victory of the season last Sunday, defeating the San Francisco Antlers, 4 to 3, on the Jefferson Union high school diamond.

Julio Bonetti's effective pitching was the feature of this close fought contest. The local twirler slow-balled the Antlers to death. His lazy curves caused nine batters to strike out, and seven others hit pop flies to the fielders. Only two balls were hit out of the infield up to the eighth inning.

The Merchants again obtained an early lead, and then proceeded to hold the opposition in check. A two run rally in the opening frame gave Daly City something to work on, and another spurt in the third inning doubled their score. They had only one good chance to tally after that.

Four local players obtained two bingles off Alcantara, the Antlers' pitcher. Aiello, Davies, Rettig and Hawley divided the batting honors, while Ken Cameron utilized his lone safety to drive in the tying run. He also scored the winning run. Aiello's triple was the longest hit of the game.

The visitors fought hard to stave off defeat, and failed only after playing one of the most sparkling games seen on the local grounds. Eagan, second baseman, lived up to all the nice things said about him, turning in three well executed catches. Junker was the big gun at the plate, garnering three hits in five times at bat. The rest of their bingles were well scattered.

After the Merchants had scored their first two runs, the Antlers evened matters with a rally in the third, only to lose ground as Daly City came to bat in the same stanza. Bonetti walked across the visitors' markers. The San Franciscans again threatened in the ninth, but were stopped one run short through the medium of a snappy throw to second by Cameron, cutting off the tying run.

Several New York restaurants are offering "all you want to eat for 60 cents," and say gross business and profits have increased under this no-limit plan. Occassionally they lose on a gluttonous customer, such as one proprietor tells about, who ate "a tomato juice cocktail, soup, three orders of liver with onions and potatoes, two salads, four cups of coffee, a pie, custard and watermellon."

Among the many seemingly trivial tests made by psychologists and others was a recent one to determine whether factory girls turned out more work on days when they suffered from headaches. Rather surprising was the discovery that they did.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS ON COASTAL ROUTE

Leading through a region of exceptional scenic and recreational attractions, the main coast route between San Francisco and Los Angeles, U. S. 101 (El Camino Real), has been extensively improved during 1930 and the first half of 1931. During that period, according to a report received by the highways bureau of the California State Automobile Association from C. H. Purcell, state highway engineer, fourteen grading and paving projects totaling sixty-four miles and entailing an expenditure of $2,709,000 have been completed or placed under construction.

Particularly appreciated by the motorists touring the California Mission trails have been the paving work between Palo Alto and Sunnyvale; near Paso Robles, Santa Margarita, and Los Alamos; and in the Gaviota Canyon north of Santa Barbara. An important project now under way is from a point north of Salinas over the hills to the San Benito river northwest of San Juan Bautista, which will provide a wide payed highway, with easy grades and modern alignment, to replace the old and difficult San Juan grade.

Another project provided for under the current budget is grading and paving extending from Los Alamos through the hills for eighteen miles to Santa Maria, shortening the distance by approximately five miles.

Six major bridges have been completed or begun on the coastal route during the past year and a half. The present program provides for new bridges over the Ventura and San Benito rivers and grade separations at Madrone and Soledad.

ENCOURAGING INDUSTRY

Arizona is a state that believes in protecting and encouraging its major industries. When it recently let a contract for automobile license plates it specified that they were to be made of Arizona copper.

It may be said that a few thousand license plates won't make much of a dent in the copper surplus. But the principle behind the specification is a good one. Every state should do what it can to stimulate local industries and payrolls.

The whole west could with profit adopt policies which in many instances would tend to increase the use of silver, copper, lead and zinc with resulting increases in mining payrolls and purchases. Now is the time to do it.

It may be cooling to some to know that Buenos Ayres is experiencing unusually cold winter weather just now.

Notwithstanding his penitentiary sentence for bribery, Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, is still on Uncle Sam's payroll. He draws a pension of $72 a month for service as a Captain in the Spanish-American War. Incidentally it may be noted that the alleged giver of the bribe was acquitted of the charge, while Fall was convicted of receiving it.

A thief in Clarksdale, Miss., recently showed thoroughness in his work. He stole Police Chief Knight's white pants from a clothesline, and as a precaution also stole the police dog which was supposed to be on guard at the chief's home.

Perhaps the most outrageous happening since racketeering became the great American industry was the shooting of five innocent children at play on a New York street by gangsters trying to kill a rival, who escaped. One 5-year-old boy died, one child was perhaps fatally wounded, the other three being less seriously hurt. Detectives were ordered "to bring in every beer racketer in the city for questioning." One wonders why, if these criminals can be found for "questioning," they could not be found for putting in jail.

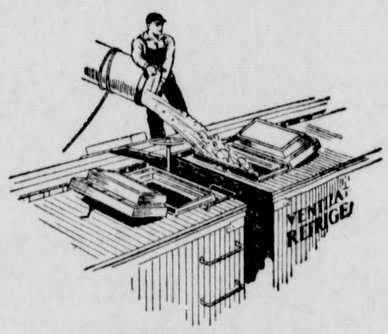
Fresh Meats for everyone . . thanks to Refrigeration



COOLED by tons of salted ice, refrigerator cars speed fresh meats to every town and hamlet. But for this modern method, many communities would still depend on salt pork and barreled beef!

Meat packing companies maintain vast systems of distribution in this state—pay five million dollars in annual wages—buy approximately 60 million dollars' worth of California livestock every year.

Credit, extended by Bank of America, helps to provide a year-around cash market for livestock producers.

In distributing meats, the packers also make constructive use of this Bank's statewide service.

Through Bank of America branches in all parts of the state, they accumulate funds collected from dealers.

The Bank promptly forwards these funds to any designated point. Thus large sums that would otherwise remain in transit are released for productive use.

This is one of many economies that enable the packers to conduct their business on a small fraction of the consumer's dollar.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 4 FRIIDAY, AUGUST 21, 1931 NUMBER 4

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

We are assured by the father of a large family that he finds nothing wrong with the rising generation, beyond a difficulty each morning in geting them to rise.

Do you need a "Fix-it-Man?" Give us a ring and he will be at your service.

How She Knew

Mrs. Sharp (in restaurant): "Just look at that Scotchman eating over there."

Mr. Sharp: "I see the man, but what makes you think he is Scotch?"

Mrs. Sharp: "He licked his spectacles after eating his grape fruit."

"ABERDEEN," the Coal that satisfies.

Identity Unknown

Mary: "Did you go riding with Billy last night?"

Jane: "Yes."

Mary: "Well, what do you think of him?"

Jane: "Well, he is either a gentleman or a fool."

When in need of Coal, think of H. H.

"Will you marry me in spite of my trouble?"

"What is it?"

"Falling hair."

"You darling boy. To how much?"

His Better Half

An old offender was accused of assaulting his wife.

"Liquor?" asked the judge.

"No," answered the prisoner, gloomily, "she licked me."

If we can not serve you as well as anywhere else, we do not expect your orders.

Arthur: "Do you object to petting?"

Martha: "That's one thing I have never done yet."

Arthur: "Petted?"

Martha: "No, objected."

When in need of Lumber, this is the place to come.

Low: "What is it a sign of when your nose itches?"

Brow: "Going to have company."

Low: "And what if your head itches?"

Brow: "They have arrived."

Good Coal saves you money. Try our ABERDEEN.
